

16 April 1979

AEROSPACE DAILY

Overseas Writers Club

INTELLIGENCE COLLECTION: Director of Central Intelligence Stansfield Turner says the U.S. is "in a peak now" in terms of numbers of technical intelligence collection systems—photo-taking satellites and aircraft and signals intelligence devices. Speaking at a meeting last week of the Overseas Writers' club in Washington, he said the situation is similar to the military aircraft acquisition process, which is also peaking.